Summer is here and that means it is Hurricane Season. Make sure that you have your hurricane supplies, and a plan of evacuation.

Over the next few months we will begin learning the 2020 plan information to be prepared for Annual Enrollment Period. Remember to look for the information we send to you in September.

THANK YOU

We really appreciate all of the referrals that you have sent to us over the years. Along with your friends that you have sent to us, we have entire families from parents to children and siblings. You are the reason that we are successful and continue to grow as a business.

CLEANING FOR A REASON

It's difficult keeping a home clean under any circumstances, but when cancer hits a household, the burden can be overwhelming. That's when Cleaning For A Reason steps in, partnering with more than 1,200 maid services to provide free house cleaning to women, 19 years or older, battling any type of cancer. Due to demand, patients are eligible to receive just one round of services through our program. Please note that our cleaning companies volunteer their services and are not compensated in any way.

When matched with a cleaning company, a patient receives a total of two free house cleanings, that is one general cleaning a month for up to two months. Please note that this is not a guaranteed service. We may not have a cleaning company in a patient's area or if we do, the company may be at capacity with the number of patients that they are already helping.

BEWARE OF COMMERCIALS AND OTHER AGENTS

We have been contacted by clients that have seen commercials or have been approached by other agents offering inflated benefits in other plans. Which many times are not in the best interest of the client. You could lose your doctors, hospital of choice and some medications may not be covered. We represent all of the companies, and we always look at all of the plans to make sure that you get the best benefits for your individual needs. Please call us first before you change to another plan.

SOCIAL SECURITY DEDUCTION FOR PREMIUM

Earlier this year, a federal government systems issue prevented Medicare Advantage and Part D premiums from being automatically deducted from the Social Security payments of some people with Medicare. Normally, if a beneficiary elects, Social Security deducts the premiums and sends them directly to the plan. In this instance, the payments were not sent to the plans, and beneficiaries did not know that their plans were not receiving them.

While the issue has since been resolved and premium payments should be processed correctly moving forward, Medicare Rights remains concerned about the scope of the processing error and the potential impacts on beneficiaries—including confusion, financial hardship, and coverage losses.

According to the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services \(CMS\), affected individuals include those who were “enrolled either in a Medicare Advantage Plan or in a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan for coverage starting January 1, 2019” and chose to have their premiums automatically deducted from their monthly Social Security benefit, rather than pay the plan directly.

However, it’s not yet clear how many of these enrollees were affected, if those who were have been made aware, or how much they might owe. The Social Security Administration (SSA) notes that “Plans will be sending premium bills to those affected. If you are affected and haven’t already received a bill in the mail, you will soon. The first bill will likely be for a larger amount than usual to make up for the unpaid premiums.”

Importantly, plans must offer enrollees a “grace period” to repay the missed premium payments, which must last at least as long as the delay in billing. Plans also have the option not to pursue these outstanding payments.
